At the grade school I attended in Uji, Kyoto, there was a faucet that produced tea when turned on.

It had a distinctive aroma, and was delicious.

I recently found out that it was a type of tea called "Kyobancha."

You have to be careful because the tea comes out super-hot.

It's hot enough to sterilize aluminum cups, so you need to mix in some cold water to drink it. Hmm? No, I'm not lying. It's true!

Recently, I have had the good fortune to visit the Republic of Kazakhstan. It is a grassland nation in Central Asia.

The wondrous sensation of "The sky is so expansive! And so blue! It goes on forever before getting sucked into the horizon at all points of the compass!" was quite lovely.

Well, I hope that in similar fashion, Boruto and his friends' adventures will continue to be loved all over the world. Period.

STORY

The Great Ninja War that shook the world and shed much blood is now history. Naruto has become the Seventh Hokage, and the people of Konohagakure Village are enjoying peace. Yet Naruto's son Uzumaki Boruto has a glum life, perhaps due to his father's too-great influence.

Rebelling against Naruto while simultaneously craving his praise, Boruto decides to enter the Chunin Exam along with his teammates Sarada and Mitsuki. However, Boruto ends up secretly using a prohibited Scientific Ninja Tool and is stripped of his shinobi status by his father.

Just then, members of the Ohtsutsuki Clan attack the arena! Boruto faces off against them alongside Naruto, Sasuke, and others, and they achieve victory with a Rasengan that father and son weave together. However, a strange mark appears on Boruto's right palm...

Later, with a new resolve to become a ninja, Boruto is tasked with searching for Konohamaru, who had gone missing during a mission. When they arrive at the airship crash site that Konohamaru had been investigating, Boruto and his team are attacked by Scientific Ninja Tool-powered puppets. Saved by Katasuke's quick wits, Boruto manages to rendezvous with Konohamaru, but then the former Mist Ninja Ao shows up and aims a gun at them...
